TERRITORY MOURNS DEATH OF H. P. BALDWIN

PLAN BISHOP STREET EXTENSION

Campbell On High Salary

A. J. Campbell, agent of the Territorial Board of Immigration, will go to Europe to recruit plantation laborers as the highest salaried man the Territory has.

Campbell's salary, according to authoritative information, will be $10,000 a year and his expenses. The board of immigration has so far made no statement of his salary, and Mr. Campbell himself declines to tell just what is the advantageous change in his contract that persuaded him to return to Europe, but from an unquestionable source it has been learned that he will go back with a contract that raises his former salary four thousand dollars.

He was reluctant to go even at this figure, it is said. The contract does not call for a definite stay in Europe, and there is said to be no guarantee that he will remain there any considerable length of time.

Governor Frear draws down $7000 a year as the chief executive of the Territory. Up to the present time, he has been the record-holder, but Campbell's $10,000 leaves all contenders far in the rear.

The board believes that his achievements in the past in the immigrant-recruiting line entitle him to the big salary.

WAIKIKI CASE READY FOR JURY

Six Weeks of Trial On Condemnation Is Ended.

After six weeks of trial the Waikiki condemnation case is finally ready for submission to the jury, completing a sort of legal Marathon that has been progressing in the United States District Court.

The Government brought suit for condemnation on an appraised valuation of the land for $10,000, and a technical and determined legal battle has been waged by the counsel for the interested parties. United States District Attorney Breckins has conducted the case for the Government while the firm of Holmes, Stanley and Olson appeared for David Nohola, the owner of the land, and Castle and Withington for W. R. Castle, the lessee. The property adjoins Fort De Russy and has a sea frontage. There are several buildings on the property, the value of the largest being the cause of much testimony and legal argument during the course of the trial. The case is expected to go to the jury this afternoon.

Private Funds For Public Job

Property - Owners May Open Street At Own Expense Now

Property-owners affected by the proposed extension of Bishop street from Hotel to Beretania street are getting together on a plan that may mean definite action on this improvement that has figured more or less prominently for several years. Under the plan that is now on, the property-owners will assume the expense of having the street cut through.

The Oahu central improvement committee is taking the matter up and will do some pro bono publico work in hastening the completion of the plans and an agreement among the property-owners. It is understood also that private parties are working in harmony toward the same end, and further announcement of details will soon be made. The improvement committee has so far taken no action, but the general sentiment of the members is so strongly in favor of the opening of Bishop street that a move for this can be forecast now.

Property-owners have been given to understand that Superintendent of Public Works Campbell estimates the cost of cutting the street through at approximately $50,000. So far, no opposition has arisen to the subscribing of this amount by the men affected, and the work will probably be done by private subscription instead of Territorial condemnation proceedings.

The closing of Union street, together with a plan to take a strip off of Hotel street, figured as the cause of a vigorous battle in the last Legislature, when a bill relocating Union street and narrowing Hotel nearly got through the Legislature. The bill was finally beaten, opposition being made to it by cause no provision was made for opening Bishop street and property-owners on Union street were unwilling to lose their frontage until assured that Bishop would be opened. William Wolters, a heavy property-owner in this section, was one of the most vigorous opponents of the bill. Mr. Wolters said this morning that he is ready to fall into line with the new plans for the Bishop street extension, and that he believes the property-owners will subscribe the necessary funds to put the job through. If this is done, he will waive all objections to the closing of Union street.

"I am convinced that if the superintendent of public works will draw up his plans for this extension and submit the complete details to the property-owners, they will come forward with the necessary funds," said Mr. Wolters today. "I feel that he can hasten this improvement materially."

Although the Union street relocation bill was beaten, the Legislature late in the session passed a resolution authorizing the superintendent to proceed with the opening of Bishop street, and he can act under this power.

"I know of no objections to the closing of Union street provided we are assured of Bishop street," says Mr. Wolters. "Decision on this should be hastened, as otherwise new buildings will be put up along Union street and it will cost much more later on to close the street."

The Mediterranean fruit fly is up for discussion at a joint meeting being held this afternoon by the board of health and the board of agriculture and forestry.

RAPID TRANSIT FRANCHISE EXTENSION WILL NOT GO TO CONGRESS UNTIL DECEMBER

No action will be taken soon by the Rapid Transit Company looking to a fight for extension of its franchise. According to present plans, states an officer of the company, the Rapid Transit people will not carry their case on to Washington during the present session of Congress, though it is more than a possibility that they will do so in December, when the next session begins.

It is not believed that any action could be secured from Congress and the president during the present session, Congress having its mind full of other matters, notably the tariff, reciprocity and its numerous investigations and near-investigations of various trusts.

Gov. Frear pocket vetoed the Rapid Transit franchise bills that passed the last legislature, House Bills 231 and 232, which would have extended the franchise to July 1, 1950. Rapid Transit officials take the view that the legislature, as representing the people of the territory, passed the bills and thus voiced the favorable sentiment of the people toward the franchise extension, and that a valid reason exists for carrying the case on to Washington to receive the necessary approval of Congress.

RAISING FUND TO PROTECT COTTON

A committee of three has been named by the Hawaiian Cotton Growers' Association to raise a fund of $2,000, of which $1500 was previously pledged, to start the fight against the boll-worm that now threatens the cotton crops of the Territory. The committee consists of J. E. Hamilton, S. M. Lowrey and John A. Johnson, and already a good start toward the necessary amount has been made.

Today Mr. Hamilton reported that a local business man had net down his name for $100 and is anxious to see the cotton men succeed in their fight against this pest. Indications are that the fund will be raised in a short time and the growers can get busy with their plans for sending an expert entomologist to India to hunt out a parasite that will prove effective against the boll-worm.

Cotton growers are enthusiastic over the prospects for crops this year and next provided the pest can be eliminated or held down so that its ravages will not be serious. The $1500 pledged is a guarantee from J. P. Cooke and the association now wishes to raise the other half.

PLAN "CLEAN-UP" DAY FOR HILO

Hilo is to have a "Clean-up Day" and neither the U. S. Grand Jury nor the Commissioners of Public Instruction will have a hand in the event, it being reserved exclusively for the representatives of the Board of Health with such assistants as the board may designate.

The success of "Clean-up Day" in Honolulu was so pronounced that both the residents of Hilo and the officials of the health department believe that the much good will be accomplished by a similar attempt to remove the accumulated rubbish in the metropolis of the Big Island.

Chief Sanitary Officer Bowman of Hawaii, who has been in Honolulu during the past week while the health campaign was being mapped out and the money allotted for the new biennial period, states that he is in favor of the plan and believes that the clean-up of Hilo can be profitably undertaken.

The McQuaid divorce trial was resumed before Judge Robinson this morning. Attorney Coke for William McQuaid beginning the presentation of evidence in McQuaid's cross-complaint for divorce, in which a number of improper acts are alleged against Mrs. McQuaid.

Business Halts; Honor To Dead

(Special Bulletin Wireless.)
WAILUKU, Maui, July 10.—Business has stopped and the entire community will unite in doing honor to the Hon. H. P. Baldwin. The championship basketball game between the Kalihis girls' team of Honolulu and the Maui girls has been postponed. The funeral will take place from Maluhia at 2 o'clock today.

The entire Territory is mourning today the death of the Hon. H. P. Baldwin, which occurred last Saturday night at his home on Maui. This afternoon the funeral is taking place, and prominent men from all over the Territory are assembled about the grave of one of Hawaii's foremost citizens.

The Mauna Kea, flagship of the Inter-Island fleet, left last night on a special trip to Kahului to carry those who wished to attend the funeral. Governor Walter F. Frear, Secretary E. A. Mott-Smith and several other Territorial officials are present at the funeral services today. The gathering at the home and later at the grave includes S. M. Damon, D. P. B. Isenberg, G. P. Wilder, P. C. Jones, A. Lewis Jr., C. H. Atherton, W. R. Castle, J. B. Castle, T. Clive Davies, W. Pfotenhauser, J. A. Kennedy, Bishop Resnick, Judge F. M. Hatch, Cecil Brown, John Guild, P. Billingham and many other business men, while most of the living relatives of the deceased are also at Maluhia, the family home.

The death of the Hon. H. P. Baldwin has been received all over the Territory with deepest sorrow, and Honolulu today is unofficially mourning the end of one of the Territory's most distinguished citizens.

Banks and the sugar houses, as well as trust companies and many business firms, closed their doors at noon today out of respect to his memory. No formal action was necessary. The word was simply passed around.

Trustees of the Chamber of Commerce and directors of the Merchants' Association decided upon a general closing at 2 o'clock, and practically all of the local shops and business houses closed at the appointed hour.

Alexander & Baldwin's offices were closed all day today, and upon the knoll of each door hung great bows of crepe, with a card above them bearing the notice, "Closed on account of the death of Mr. H. P. Baldwin."

The Republican Territorial executive committee will hold a meeting tomorrow to pass resolutions of respect. Mr. Baldwin was a staunch Republican and a chairman of the Maui county committee. The vice-chairman, H. A. Baldwin, his son, will probably fill the position. But men all over the Territory, (Continued on Page 3)

DREDGING COMPANY MAY BE HELD LIABLE FOR DAMAGE TO QUARANTINE LAUNCH

The Standard American Dredging Company, which has charge of the work of deepening the Ewa end of the harbor, may be held responsible for the damage to the Federal quarantine launch Oahu, which met with disaster on Sunday afternoon by running into two submerged piles, sunk in that section of the harbor and used by the dredger as a mooring.

Dr. Carl Ramus has decided to take the matter up with the Federal authorities. It is understood that the Territory of Hawaii has no jurisdiction over the section of the harbor where the accident occurred. The claim is made that the dredging company under the law is obliged to mark the location of its mooring piles by signals or buoys. The contention is raised that at the time of the collision there was nothing to indicate the presence of a sunken obstruction.

A merry party of young people were enjoying a ride about the harbor in the launch at the time. They were the guests of Dr. Carl Ramus and Messrs. Moses T. Clegg, Wilcox and Laurence Judd. The young ladies included eleven girls of Phi Kappa Gamma sorority, of California University, and included Miss Gooding, Miss Margaret Hazeltime, Miss Edith Harmon, Miss Anita Elmer, Miss Leila McKibbin, Miss Anita Crellin, Miss Helen Bannan, Miss Marjorie Mitchell and Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Witter.

Save being a bit frightened and receiving a slight weighting, the party was uninjured and was taken off the sunken launch by the Matson Navigation tug Intrepid. Captain Hyde noted the predicament of the launch and its passengers and lost no time in hastening to the scene. No blame is attached by (Continued on Page 5)

EXPECTS POSTAL BANKS HERE SOON

Early designation of postal savings banks in the Territory of Hawaii is expected by Inspector Frank J. Hare, for the Postoffice Department has sent him in pamphlet form the complete instructions as to the conduct and operation of such institutions.

A number of postal savings banks will be named for this Territory, he thinks. In this connection, Mr. Hare says that Hilo was never officially designated as one of the locations for the postal banks, and that the assumption that it had been named has been a long-continued mistake. The act provided that the system should be established by the location of fifty postal banks in second-class offices of the States and Territories. As Hilo is the only second-class office in this Territory, it was apparently assumed that Hilo had been designated, when, declares Mr. Hare, it was never picked out at all.

Recently the department is establishing postal banks at the rate of about fifty a week, and many locations are being named in this division, which includes Hawaii, California and Nevada.

The postal banks are designed to be self-sustaining, and Mr. Hare is of the opinion that the establishment of the banks in this Territory has been delayed partly because the government wished to give the system a try-out before extending it to offices where it might not be self-supporting. Extensive information as to offices and postmasters in Hawaii has been sent to Washington and the department should be ready to act soon.

Elsewhere the system is proving a great success, and up to June 22 eight hundred offices had been designated as postal savings depositories. The last fifty will begin operation next Saturday.

MAYOR'S VETO OF BILL CHARGES FRAUD

Declares Ordinance Shearing Him of Power Makes No Improvement.

SAYS REPRESENTATIONS NOT BEING CARRIED OUT

Chief Executive of City Sends Message to Supervisors and Surprises Them by Presence

Mayor J. J. Fern did not go to Maui to attend the funeral over the remains of H. P. Baldwin today.

His Honor had called a special meeting of the City and County Board of Supervisors on last Saturday, the gathering to convene at noon today. A full representation of the City fathers were present. Mayor Fern returned ordinance No. 33 relating to the construction and maintenance of roads and public highways, with his veto.

When this measure becomes a law, as it probably will by its passage over the head of the Mayor, Fern will find himself shorn of a large percentage of his prerogatives.

In his veto delivered at noon today, Mayor Fern said:

"I herewith return to you, without my approval Bill No. 33, an ordinance relating to the construction, repair, and maintenance of public streets, highways, roads, alleys, trails, sidewalks, bridges, and public places in the City and County of Honolulu, and do hereby specifically disapprove same for the following reasons:

First it is a fraud against the taxpayers and voters of the City and County of Honolulu, as well as the Legislature and the Chief Executive of the Territory of Hawaii, in that it does not carry out the representations, which I am reliably informed, were made to the Legislature of the (Continued on Page 2)

SEN. FAIRCHILD MISREPRESENTED

Senator Fairchild stated this morning that he has been most liberally quoted and misrepresented in the story published by the morning paper regarding the attitude of Delegate Kuhio. "Delegate Kuhio told me," said Senator Fairchild, "during the session of the Legislature that he did not want the Governorship. I have made this statement repeatedly and have never had an occasion to doubt the good faith of the Delegate. It was the Delegate himself who was most positive in heading off a resolution that could have been put through the Legislature endorsing him for the Governorship."
